

2003 Person of the Year

The Person of the Year Award is in recognition of Amy's outstanding contributions to the warehouse distributors and in appreciation of her conscientious dedication as an individual member of the specialty equipment industry.

Amy Faulk, Hypertech

As Chief Administration Officer for Hypertech, Amy provides thirty one years of multiple skills and industry experience to the company. While her involvement in the company is extensive and critical to its success, she has served multiple elected and appointed roles in SEMA, including its Board of Directors and Motorsports Parts Manufacturers Committee (as its Chairperson), SBN (as its Chairperson), while continuing to chair the SEMA Silent Auction Committee, in addition to other association responsibilities of similar importance. She was also SEMA Person of the Year in 1996 and elected to its Hall of Fame in 2002. And lastly, she is an active participant in NHRA and IHRA having won the NHRA Super Stock World Championship in 1979 and elected to the Car Craft All Star in 1980.
